

Creation of RISK&CO Engineering

Neuilly, on October 1, 2009 – RISK&CO, a French specialist in security and strategic intelligence consulting, and Epsilon-Consultants, a consulting firm and a technical research department specialised in security and safety, announce the creation of a common entity dedicated to the engineering of international major projects in security and safety: RISK&CO Engineering.

RISK&CO Engineering provides high value-added intellectual services in the areas of security and safety for people, assets and information. It brings together all its capacities to answer international calls for tender regarding the protection of sensitive sites and infrastructures, involving at the same time human, organisational and technical components.

RISK&CO Engineering relies on the skills and expertise, in France and abroad, of its multidisciplinary teams composed of:

- experts consultants in audit, operational management and engineering from RISK&CO, leader in risk management and strategic information analysis,
- consulting engineers from Epsilon-Consultants, specialised in security systems design.

RISK&CO Engineering accompanies contracting owners, project managers and operators on large or sensitive sites in all matters pertaining to consulting and expertise missions (risk analysis, master plans, business continuity plans, architecture studies) and both technical and operational assistance (support to men and organisations, assistance to security and safety systems deployment, implementation and maintenance).

This extensive knowledge of the intricate areas of safety and security implementation, be it human, technical or organisational, enables RISK&CO Engineering to guarantee to its clients that the design and setting-up of global, performing and sustainable solutions, are in compliance with specificities of the sovereignty industries requirements (Defence, Space, Energy).
